

ARMY ENGINEERS CONSIDERING FLOOD CONTROL AT TRENTON

Special Attention to Conditions at Mt. Holly, N. J., and Honesdale, Pa., Being Given

TO REPORT BY SPRING

Must Estimate Damage Done By River at Trenton Over Period of Years

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(INS)—A flood control survey report with special attention to flood conditions at Trenton and Mt. Holly, N. J., and Honesdale, Pa., is being prepared by the United States army engineers, it was learned today.

The report—to be finished by Spring—will recommend what measures, if any, should be taken to protect Trenton from the ravages of the Delaware River, to save Mt. Holly from floods by the Rancocas River, and to safeguard Honesdale from overflows of the Lackawaxen River.

Provided it is found that special flood control work at any of these points is warranted, the report will form the basis for such operations. V. F. Spring, technical engineer of the Army engineers office in Philadelphia, explained.

The question being pondered at Trenton, Spring asserted, is whether flood damage by the Delaware over a period of years has been high enough to make expenditures on flood control work justifiable.

Spring pointed out that Trenton suffered damage in the St. Patrick's day floods of 1936 and in subsequent risings of the Delaware, but that the estimated damage done by the river over a period of years must be determined.

This is broken down into a yearly average of loss, he said, and checked against the estimated annual cost of maintaining flood protection. Spring explained that a maintenance cost higher than the average yearly damage cost would indicate flood control work was not warranted.

With bridges and dams contributing to the cause, Honesdale was the worst-hit spot on the Lackawaxen River in the floods of March, 1938, Spring said. As in the case of Trenton, estimates of flood control costs are being prepared for submission to the Chief of Army Engineers at Washington, Spring disclosed.

Conditions at Mt. Holly, hard hit by several floods during recent years, have been checked and a report on them is now being drawn up. Bridges over the Rancocas in the Mt. Holly business area contributed to flood conditions by checking the flow of the swollen stream, the survey showed.

PRESIDENT CARDENAS UNFOLDS HIS PLANS

Issues Warning Relative To Disposal of Expropriated Petroleum Holdings

OUTLINES HIS VIEWS

A direct warning that Mexico will dispose of expropriated foreign petroleum holdings on long term contracts with Fascist powers unless the former American and British owners of such oil properties in Mexico are willing to accept a compromise in the matter of compensation, was sounded today by President Lazaro Cardenas, of Mexico, in an exclusive interview with H. R. Knickerbocker, world-renowned foreign correspondent of International News Service.

The President of Mexico outlined his views in the first interview on the subject accorded any American newspaperman since the expropriation decrees were promulgated last year.

Knickerbocker interviewed President Cardenas soon after his arrival in Mexico City at the beginning of a 15,000 mile tour throughout the Republics of the Western Hemisphere, undertaken to determine the full extent of European penetration in the countries of the new world.

The following article is the first of three which will deal with the official Mexican attitude toward the oil problem. There will be other articles at regular intervals throughout Knickerbocker's tour.

By H. R. Knickerbocker

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Jan. 26.—(INS)—Mexico is turning the heat on the British and American oilmen who lost property they value at an estimated $500,000,000 in the oil fields and plants expropriated here last March by the government of President Lazaro Cardenas.

Until now the outside world believed that the oil companies by blocking sales of the expropriated oil in the territories influenced by the United States or Great Britain were in a superior economic position to coerce Mexico.

Now President Cardenas, in an exclusive interview with International News Service, declares that if the oilmen do not speedily decide to buy the oil, which used to be theirs, and by this means take compensation for their expropriated property, the Mexican Government will soon make long term contracts to sell its oil "elsewhere."

"Elsewhere" means to Germany, Italy and Japan, and possibly to some Latin American States, the only countries so far willing to trade in the expropriated oil. Until now Mexico has been bartering the oil piecemeal to these countries with each sale a separate transaction. Now a leading Mexican authority tells me that if Mexico were willing to sign a five to ten year contract, she could sell all her oil to Italy alone, and receive a high percentage of the payments in cash.

Such long term contracts would establish trade connections which could be fatal to American commerce with Mexico, normally amounting to more than $300,000,000 a year of exports and imports. So, in the Mexican view, it is now up to the oil companies to hold out for the return of their properties, or take a compromise, save something for themselves, and rescue American-Mexican trade in the bargain.

These are the arguments implicit in the interview which President Cardenas, leader of the great Indian nationalist and socialist movement in Mexico, gave me in the simply furnished Presidential office of the vast old national palace.

General Cardenas is more than the head of the Mexican state under a system which, while preserving Democratic forms and a considerable degree of Democratic liberty, endows the President with dictatorial powers. He is the latest, most energetically socialist and at the same time fiercely nationalist of all the leaders of the Mexican revolution which began in 1910 and is not yet finished.

How it will finish is a matter of the utmost importance to the United States, and General Cardenas, by his two major acts in office has shown how he wants it to finish: With Mexico completely Mexican and completely socialist. He has taken away from the big land owners and distributed to the peasants more acreage than all his predecessors put together.

With $17,500 worth of bonds to be paid off this year, an increase of $12,500 over last year, Doylestown Borough Council voted to raise the borough tax rate 2 mills for 1939, making the new rate 12 mills.

After hearing the report of finance committee and Borough Treasurer Horace M. Mann, together with the recommendation of the budget committee, Council members unanimously agreed that nothing else could be done but increase the tax rate.

The only other course to have been taken would have been to "cut expenses to the bone" and allow a lot of the progressive work, including many of the necessary items, to pass by the board this year.

WIND UNROOFS DWELLING ON CORSON STREET, HERE

Property of Nick George, 742 Corson Street, Considerably Damaged Yesterday Noon

RAFTERS RIPPED OUT

The complete roof of a two-story brick building at 742 Corson street was blown off shortly after noon yesterday. The property, owned by Nick George and occupied by him and his family as a residence, is situated at the upper end of Corson street and was the only house in that section damaged by the wind yesterday. A group of WPA workers with trucks at some distance from the Corson street property, said they felt the severe wind, which "rocked their trucks."

At the time that the roof was lifted clear of the George property, Mrs. George, her daughter and a girl friend were the only ones at home. They were startled by a severe crashing sound and at first thought that the chimneys were coming down.

The roof was lifted off in two pieces. It was a tin roof and the tin carried the rafters along with it, lifting them out of the brick wall. The roof was dropped in the street and in a field across the street.

An electric pole was broken when the roof struck it and wires were ripped from their fastenings.

Part of the debris was scattered over the second floor bedrooms of the George home.

The next meeting will be conducted on February 27th. The annual banquet of the Cadets will take place on February 18th in the Bristol high school.

A covered dish luncheon followed the meeting.

ROBIN OUT IN SNOW

CROYDON, Jan. 26.—A robin was seen flitting about on the snow on the lawn of Mrs. Benjamin Ahart's home here, yesterday noon. The surprised resident noted that when the bird made its appearance a very strong wind was blowing, and the temperature at that hour was 28 above zero, or four degrees below freezing point.

E. Willard and seconded by Councilman G. Thawley Hayman, the tax rate resolution was passed. Borough Treasurer Mann reported the County Seat assessment at slightly over $4,000,000, so that the additional revenue from the 2 mill increase will bring in a badly needed $8,000.

The estimated income for the borough in 1939 is $85,500 as compared to the estimated expense of $90,850, so that an increased tax rate was necessary to balance the budget.

Councilman Hayman, chairman of the street committee, informed Council that expenses in his department would run between $17,000 and $20,000 in 1939 which is about the normal expenditure on streets in Doylestown annually. One of the 1939 improvements, it was intimated, will be the rebuilding of part of East Ashland street along the Burpee Playgrounds.

The Woman's Club of Perkaskie enjoyed a luncheon in St. Stephen's Reformed church. Eighty-seven members were present including twenty past.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

A Coincidence

Washington, Jan. 25. IN the debate over the Hopkins confirmation some interesting things were revealed besides the depth of the feeling which exists between New Deal and anti-New Deal Democrats and which is important because of the clarity with which it forecasts the struggle for control of the 1940 convention.

THE vote, of course, was no measure of the real division, as some who spoke against Mr. Hopkins voted for him and others refrained from voting at all on the ground that precedent favors permitting a President to have whom he likes in his Cabinet and that, anyway, this particular post is the least important of all. Court Decides Against Hague

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—In a 2 to 1 decision, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld injunctions by the U. S. District Court in Newark, restraining Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and his police department from intervening with the civil liberties of the CIO and other groups.

The court sustained injunctions issued last November 7th by Federal Judge William Clark, in Newark, which specifically ordered the Mayor and Jersey City officials from intervening with CIO meetings and other gatherings.

The Circuit Court decision ordered Mayor Hague to grant equal rights for free speech and assembly to the union and to other organizations in the case, and added: "Examination of the record leads us to the conclusion that the police of Jersey City pursued a course of conduct against the appellees, the CIO, Steel Workers' Organizing Committee and several more unions, and the American Civil Liberties Union."

Predict Snow Tonight

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—Driven by a 40-mile gale sweeping down from the Hudson Bay area, the season's coldest weather today gripped Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey, bringing danger to pedestrians and motorists from ice-glazed highways.

With a low of 10 degrees above zero recorded in the Philadelphia area and lower Bucks county, the weather bureau predicted cloudy skies and light snow for tonight. Southerly winds would bring relief from biting temperatures by tomorrow, the bureau forecast. Still northwest winds drove the Delaware River down to the lowest tide in the memory of veteran rivermen. Ferry schedules and water travel generally were delayed, while the Schuylkill River was sheathed with a coat of ice. High winds reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour at the Camden Airport, uprooting trees, smashing plate glass windows and snapping power lines over a wide area.

Plea for Phone's Use To Summon Firemen Unheeded

YARDLEY, Jan. 26.—Yardley firemen were called to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of William Breece, Yardley-Fallsington Road, yesterday morning.

Breece, discovering the fire, went to his phone to give the alarm, only to find that his line was busy, and his plea to permit him to signal the operator for a fire call was unheeded, he claims. Realizing the velocity of the wind, and the extreme damage which could be done with a little headway to the already roaring chimney, he drove his truck to the farm of his brother, A. R. Breece, about half a mile away. Due to the slippery condition of the road, Breece ditched his truck a short distance from his destination, forcing him to continue the trip by foot.

The fire was due to soot which lodged in the chimney, and the damage was confined to the chimney.

President Cardenas Unfolds His Plans

He has defied the greatest foreign capital group in the world, seized their property and kicked them out of Mexico.

No matter who succeeds him, Mexico will not be the same again. Next year he must surrender office to a new President. General Cardenas insists he will not attempt to influence the choice of his successor, although a word from him would almost certainly elect his man. Mexicans of all parties including his enemies say it is certain he will remain true to the constitution and not succeed himself, although any President in command of the armed forces could do so.

This leader of a course more radical than any ever before attempted in the Western Hemisphere has a mild and pacific exterior. He is a big man, but carries his weight lightly and looks not more than his forty-three years, as he advances with outstretched hand, broad and strong fingered, the hand of the Mexican peasant Lazaro Cardenas once was.

His eyes are very dark, lustrous, questioning behind curly lashes and surrounded by heavy black eyebrows. Raven black hair and moustache, wide cheekbones, and copper red skin denote the Tarascan Indian origin of which General Cardenas is proud. Mexico once was all Indian, and General Cardenas intends to restore to the Mexican Indian the sovereignty which he lost first to the Spaniards, and last as Mexicans now insist, to the foreign capitalist.

With the grave courtesy traditional to Indians, President Cardenas bade me be seated on a sofa neighboring an easel bearing a large economic map of Mexico, asked how long I had been in Mexico, how I endured the altitude, nearly two miles high here, and indicated he would be glad to answer any question. I put eight in rapid succession, all bearing on the oil expropriation.

He had certainly heard most of them, but in the eleven months which have elapsed since he surprised the world by delivering the heaviest single blow ever suffered by the oil industry at the hands of a small state, much has happened to change the answers. At first many thought Mexico must collapse.

Her peso fell, her trade diminished, her prices went up, the cost of living rose, but Mexico did not collapse. Some thought the United States would intervene, but the "good neighbor" policy carried on.

Every day that passes without a settlement of the oil dispute weighs the case against the companies and in favor of that famous nine-tenths of the law, President Cardenas brushed aside specific questions and summed up his attitude deliberately:

"The case of the expropriation of the oil companies has ceased to be a current issue for the people and the government of Mexico. The legality of the procedure is no longer being discussed. The indemnity will be paid as established by law, in 10 years, and the amount will be that which the commission appointed to make the valuation will determine."

No statement could be more directly at variance with the position taken by the oil companies. They assert that the expropriation, according to the laws of Mexico, is not yet legally consummated, because they still have pending before the Federal District Court their suit questioning the constitutionality of the original expropriation law, and the legality of the expropriation decree of March 1938. Until this suit is settled, and a possible further decision rendered by the Mexican Supreme Court, the oil companies claim the whole matter is still sub judice.

Nevertheless, President Cardenas' energetic statement now defines the position of the Mexican government. The expropriation is final and irrevocable. It is said that in private the President has himself even more positively declared that "for Mexico it would be better to burn the oil fields than to return them."

With that point settled, the next is the sum the Mexican Government proposes to pay in recompense, for even the "good neighbor" State Department reminded the Mexican Government in Mr. Hull's note of July 21, that "the taking of property without compensation, is not expropriation; it is confiscation."

Authorities close to the Mexican executive assured me that the commission appointed to make the valuation mentioned by the President is not going to allow any value for the subsoil rights, that is the oil still underground. The government will stand on the paragraph of the 1917 Mexican constitution reserving all subsoil rights to the state, and will apply it retroactively to the foreign oil properties which obtained fee simple rights to the oil lands before 1917.

But the companies, asserting their subsoil rights are guaranteed by the same constitution of 1917, forbidding the passage of retroactive laws, estimate these rights as the major part of their property. They name the round sum of $500,000,000 as a reasonable total valuation, with about $200,000,000 for the American and $300,000,000 for the British companies.

Now the same Mexican authorities have given me the estimate that the value of the above-soil property of the Americans and British would not be more than around $50,000,000. The difference of the estimate of the companies and that of the Mexican government, ten to one, is a good index to the gulf that separates them. But President Cardenas now warns that the gulf may grow greater and eventually quite impassable.

"What is of interest today," he went on, "is to know whether there are American or English companies willing to buy the oil of Mexico before the government binds itself to sell it to other countries over a long period of years."

"Does that mean," I asked, "that unless the oil companies accept payment in this fashion, there will be no payment at all?"

"No," said President Cardenas. "We may pay them in cash."

"But how can you pay in cash if your oil trade is barter?"

"We are making barter contracts now for about fifty per cent in goods and fifty per cent in cash for the expropriated oil. If you take the whole of our oil export, including that coming from formerly foreign-owned and the government-owned wells, our cash return would amount to about 75 per cent even now. And if we were to make long term contracts for the sale of the expropriated oil, I am sure we could get a larger percentage of cash than the fifty per cent we are now getting."

"That seems to show that your barter system of foreign trade is being successful," I remarked. "Do you foresee that Mexico will go in for barter more and more?"

The Presidents' answer was decisive: "Mexico uses the barter system to dispose of its oil in view of the fact that the ordinary channels of foreign trade are being obstructed. Mexico will employ whatever system best meets its internal needs, rather than permit its enemies to asphyxiate it."

In other words President Cardenas is replying to heat with heat. As long as he has only to deal with the private oil companies, his advantage at the head of a sovereign state is insuperable.

What does President Cardenas think of the "good neighbor" policy which has religiously restrained the power of the United States Government to intervene in behalf of its citizens' claims in Mexico? This will be disclosed in the next article.

TEACHERS ASK FREEDOM

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Freedom to be a citizen of the community and to exercise constitutional rights of a citizen, was demanded by Mrs. Myrtle Hooper Dahl, president of the Minnesota Education Association. Speaking before the Oregon State Teachers Association convention, Mrs. Dahl declared:

"Thorough understanding and appreciation of American democracy can never be done completely until teachers are freed. In many instances they are not allowed to discuss any controversial issue in the classroom or to express opinions on the outside."

COHEN FELS CORRIGAN IN MATCH AT THE ARENA

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 26—Duplicate performance of last week, Sammy Cohen, heavy-fisted Bronx He-brew, won the feature wrestling match at the arena last night by pinning Pat Corrigan, popular Irishman, in two out of three falls.

Cohen used his sledge-hammer right to gain the first fall in two minutes as he felled the popular Irishman with a half dozen rights to the chin. Corrigan took the second fall after five minutes, when he used a punishing leg hold with such effectiveness that Cohen gave up.

A series of crushing rights to the chin gave Cohen the third fall and the match as Corrigan lay sprawled in the center of the ring. The crowd greeted the finish with boos.

Pete Peterson won the semi-windup from Bibber McCoy, rowdy Boston grappler after 16 minutes, when Referee John Seaman disqualified McCoy for unethical tactics. The match was a thriller for the time it lasted, with McCoy supplying most of the action.

Chief Little Wolf, popular Navajo Indian, won the third match on a decision over Jim Austfri, sawed-off New York Italian. Little Wolf applied his famous deathlock twice on the Italian, but the latter managed to wiggle free both times.

Rube Wright returned to local scene after an absence of two years to win the second match from Sid Westrich, of Camden, after 12 minutes. Dick Lever, of Tennessee, won his initial victory on the local mat by pinning Casey Berger in 17 minutes.

Bandits Get $3,000

Philadelphia, Jan. 26—Five armed bandits who bound and gagged a garage attendant and slugged a night watchman unconscious, today robbed the wholesale house of a drug company of approximately $3,000 in merchandise, and escaped in three automobiles stolen from the firm's garage.

The men, all negroes, tied Willy Smith, 29, the garage man, to a chair and beat Edward Buck, 55, the watchman, about the head when he answered the ring of an elevator. Buck freed Smith when he regained consciousness, and together the pair summoned police.

NEW FACES IN POLITICS

Ben F. Jensen

Congressman-Elect from Iowa

EXIRA, Ia., Jan. — (INS) — The man who won Rep. Otha D. Wearin's seat in Congress, Rep. Elect Ben F. Jensen (R) of Exira, is the dapper Wearin's physical opposite. Heavy in build, Jensen stands more than 6 feet 2 inches tall.

The Exira Republican, a lumber man for 25 years, was elected by a huge majority in the seventh district over Roger F. Warin (D) of Bedford. Democrats had thought the similarity between the latter's name and Rep. Wearin's would pull in extra votes, but Jensen carried every county.

The Congressman-elect attended Camp Pike, Ark., Officers Training School, and served in the World War. He has been manager of a lumber yard here since 1919. He is married and has one daughter.

WONDER BABY

PORTLAND, Ore. — (INS) — Although born nine months ago, Phillip David Devin is ready to play ball games with the best and wrestle anyone at the drop of the hat. Phillip, known as Portland's "wonder baby," walked, spoke several words and drank unassisted from a glass at the age of six months. Now at the age of nine months his favorite sports are wrestling, ball games, tap dancing and riding the elevators in the apartment house where he lives. Besides lacing his own shoes, Phillip brushes his own teeth and his mother has no trouble with his diet, as he likes everything.

STRICT CITIZEN LAWS

SOFIA — (INS) — The process of becoming a Bulgarian citizen is getting more difficult.

The committee for Bulgarian citizenship is receiving no new citizens and additional clauses to the law are being considered. Henceforth no foreigner will be able to flee to Bulgaria and find a refuge in Bulgarian citizenship. No more marriages contracted in a hurry, no evading of the law of neighboring countries through the security Bulgaria guarantees with her loose domestic regulations will be allowed.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD. — Don't know whether Elsa Maxwell attended but the Ray Noble cocktail soiree met the first requirement of her definition of a good party—that it should be conceived with imagination.

Noble invited Hollywood's swank English colony to meet a deputy sheriff who is camped in his rented hacienda until an argument about furniture payments (the owner's, not Noble's) is settled.

David Niven, the Earl of Warwick, Allan Mowbray, Reginald Gardiner, Binnie Barnes and other British celebs all showed up to make the deputy's eyes bulge.

And they say the English have no sense of humor!

The Connie Bennett trip to Europe has been postponed until summer, but she and the Marquis de la Falaise have completed plans for their divorce via the long distance telephone. Papers are now on the way to England for him to sign. Connie said the other day she isn't sure where the suit will be brought or who will file it.

Seems as I overlooked one of Edward Norris' wives. He has been married three times, not two. His son is by his first wife, an eastern socialite. Lona Andre was his second bride, but they split up after a week. Then he married Ann Sheridan.

Am solemnly assured by one who should know that M-G-M is plotting to team Johnny Weissmuller and Hedy Lamarr in a remake of "The Pagan." Won't that be something?

"The Pagan" was one of Ramon Novarro's big successes and was the last picture poor Renee Adoree appeared in. Of course, you remember the musical hit of the picture—"The Pagan Love Song."

If they do remake the film, they ought to get Donald Crisp to play his original role. This is going to be a big year for Crisp. Warners have taken up his option and are planning to put him in new versions of "The Millionaire" and several other George Arliss favorites.

Somebody must have misinformed California's new Governor Olson about the movie stars being given preference in low automobile license numbers. It's the Hollywood producers, not the actors, who have the low numbers. You couldn't get Clark Gable or any of the big stars to ask for a distinctive license plate. It makes their cars too easy to spot.

At Billy Halop's suggestion, the "Dead End" kids are looking for a cheap ranch in the valley to rent for a clubhouse. Story behind the move is funnier, though. Seems as none of the mothers of the boys will encourage visits from the rest of the gang. Too much grief when all those wild Indians get together. The mothers are ticked to death over the idea of the clubhouse and have offered to buy the furniture—to save their own.

Since De Mille has been directing "Union Pacific" from a stretchers there's more drama behind the camera than in front of it. Latest De Mille move is to have his stretchers swing in a steel cage from a camera boom. Lifted high above the action, he can shout orders and be monarch—if an ailing one—of all his surveys.

If I live to be a hundred, I'll never again print that a studio is looking for a baby to use in a picture. . . . Was simply swamped with letters, wires and telephone calls after that item on Universal needing a youngster for Crosby's "East Side of Heaven." It's some satisfaction, though, that the baby selected is the child of a family who read about the search here. His name is Sanford Lee Henville and his daddy is R. J. Henville, of Los Angeles, a driver for a dairy.

Olivia De Havilland has asked Warner Brothers for permission to take flying lessons. They wanted to know if she knew a good instructor. "He ought to be," she said, "He's a naval aviator." . . . Guess we'll have to check up on that. . . . Film mothers take plenty of criticism, but a certain feminine star should be thankful that hers was too smart to be taken in by a phoney who had sold himself to the daughter as a sports celebrity. . . . Too bad about the Chester Morris. We hated to write that separation story. . . . Adrienne Ames wears a black wig and plays a Chinese girl in "Panama Cypher." . . . Arleen Whelan had a new escort at the Tropics—James McKinley Bryant. . . . Hollywood's younger and nimbler set has formed a new dance club.

Flashes from Florida

En Route to Jacksonville on Board the Orange Blossom Special.

HERE we are on our way to Florida. We have made many previous trips to the orange blossom state, but each year there is something newly magical about leaving the land of slush for the land of sunshine. Not that we don't like winter. We really do, but somehow when the holidays are over the glamor of winter is over too.

The ice and snow present other problems besides colds and slippery streets. Throughout the year we tell our friends that we only go in for winter sports. This is a very convenient answer when some energetic person suggests tennis on a sizzling July afternoon. Winter gives such friends a long awaited opportunity. With a cynical look in their eye they suggest moonlight skating and we have no way out.

Huffing and puffing we managed to push our bundled self out on the ice the other evening. After we had warmed up we practiced figure eight just as we have been practicing them for years and with no greater success. We never could quite get around that last turn. It seems to us that winter sports are for the very young and the very energetic and we are neither. And so tonight we find ourselves on this warm train with our thoughts drifting toward golf among the pines and a balmy breeze over a sun-baked beach.

Our eyes linger lovingly on the one, new shiny piece of luggage we have with us. It holds a new summer suit that flirts with us outrageously from its window setting of sand and palms before we succumbed to it. We are taking only one evening dress, the best sports clothes of the simple cut which makes you feel so definitely light. Long ago we came to the conclusion that cut is the most important thing in clothes. Ever since an experience with a cheap suit we have been convinced that the cut of a lapel may mean the difference between poise and naivete.

Anyway, all our accessories managed to fit beautifully into our well quipped little bedroom with its tea chest.

Dinner in the train's smartly decorated dining room tasted exceptionally good. (Somehow the word "dinner" doesn't seem dignified enough for these spacious dining cars.) After dinner we spent a pleasant evening in the streamlined lounge which is equipped with practically everything you have in your own living room including a radio.

And so to bed with the thrilling thought that we shall awaken in the land of cotton and Scarlett O'Hara. Tomorrow when, anticipating train jolts and wakefulness, we postponed getting as long as possible. No more! That on these modern easy-riding rails!

We awoke early and raised the curtain. Somehow the thrill of gazing from a train window over a sweep of orange country is greatest in the early morning. As we looked at the Georgia swamplands we congratulated ourselves for the nth time on having cut our car ahead by train. We knew that it would be waiting for us at Jacksonville, its trunk loaded with luggage and golf clubs. We anticipate his reunion with real pleasure knowing that we shall slide behind its wheel with that nice sense of omnipotence which every automobile driver enjoys.

RUG-MAKING IS VERY POPULAR AND USEFUL TYPE OF HANDICRAFT

By Miss Edna Stephany (Home Economics Representative)

Rug making is again becoming a popular handicraft, for attractive rugs may be made at a small cost. When scraps of left-over materials and the usable parts of cast-off clothing and blankets are used, the only cost is time and energy.

Before starting a rug, decide where and how it is to be used. Rectangular rugs are more usable than square ones and oval rugs fit into spaces better than round ones. If much floor space is to be covered, one large rug does not give the spotty effect that several small ones do.

Colors in the rug should harmonize with the color scheme of the room in which it is to be used. It is best to plan the colors before you start the rug. Soft, rich colors are better than bright ones. Tans, browns and grays

JESTER IS HERO AS OWLS' GRAPPLERS MEET CHELTENHAM

Bensalem Wrestlers Conquer Cheltenham 2nds by Close Score of 20½ to 14½

JESTER IS A NEW-COMER

No One Expected Jester To Even Go The Distance

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 26.—A star was born on the Bensalem wrestling squad last night as the Owls conquered the Cheltenham seconds by the close score of 20½ to 14½ in the most thrilling exhibition seen on the Owls' mats since the same team met the Reimer-coached team here last year.

The newcomer, who won his way into the hearts of his team-mates and fans who witnessed the match was big Warren Jester, a Freshman, who so capably stepped into the vacated shoes of Frank Wharton in the heavyweight class. Only new on the wrestling squad this year, Jester was rather weak on several points at the beginning of the season, but came along with each succeeding meet, and now has a record of two victories, including a fall, and one defeat.

Before the bout began, no one in the gym expected Jester to even go the distance against his opponent, who, though a newcomer, too, was reputed to be very good. Bensalem was leading by three points going into the final match, 17½ to 14½, and Cheltenham needed to win this match to tie or beat the Owls. They were counting on Hafner to throw his opponent to give the visitors a two-point win over Bensalem.

Jester went into the bout with instructions to "keep off his back" and not to try to pin his supposedly superior foe for in doing such, he may be thrown, and in order to avert that which would cost the Owls the meet, Coach Reimer decided to take it safe and to gamble on a possible decision win or at the worst a decision loss which would give Cheltenham only a tie with Bensalem.

However, Jester not only kept off his back when his opponent had him nearly pinned on several occasions, but he slipped out of any holds Hafner had on him. What is more, Jester would have won on a fall, perhaps, except for the fact that a time advantage in going off the mats saved Hafner. Nevertheless, Jester pulled the upset of the year in defeating his rival to give the Owls their third victory in four meets and their third straight win.

Summary of the meet:

95-pound class: Jim Shapcott, Bensalem, won a referee's decision over Bob Boyle, Cheltenham. Score: Bensalem, 3; Cheltenham, 0.

105-pound class: Bud Newlin, Cheltenham, scored a referee's decision over Cliff Adams, Bensalem. Score: Bensalem, 3; Cheltenham, 0.

115-pound class: Art Barlow, Cheltenham, pinned Barney Reynolds, Bensalem, with a body press and a reverse half nelson hold in 4:45. Score: Cheltenham, 8; Bensalem, 3.

125-pound class: Harvey Rigby, Bensalem, wrestled Jim Romell, Cheltenham, to a draw. Cheltenham, 9½; Bensalem, 4½.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 26.—

Coach John Slaven's Bensalem faculty quintet is enjoying much more success than is his varsity school team this season. For whereas the varsity has dropped four out of five games thus far, the Faculty has taken its only two games played this season, winning the second last night at the expense of the Doylestown High teachers, 41-37, in a free scoring game on the Owls court. They also have chalked up a 46-43 win over the Bensalem Alumni quintet earlier in the season.

Earl Frick, who was with the Bensalem Faculty quintet last year failed to score as did Ray Barney for Doylestown.

ST. ANN'S TO TRY FOR NINTH STRAIGHT WIN

St. Ann's A. J. will try for its ninth straight win tonight when it meets the Falls Township Alumni in the second tilt scheduled. In the first game, the Hibernians clash with the Celtics.

The Saints have not been defeated since December 5 when the Hibs nosed them out. Since then they went through the first half and into the tie-off games to win the first half crown, beating both the Hibs and Goodwill at the close of the half.

To begin the second half the boys of Pete Bornice trimmed the Grundy's five and now will attempt to stop the Falls boys. The Falls team was one of the clubs in the first half that stopped St. Ann's and it was quite a huge score that the school boys rolled up.

Bornice will have Herb Lawrence, Johnny Slaven, Ray Dorsey, Harry Berry, and Pete DeLuca in his starting line-up while Falls will start Briegleb, Duerr, Cappiello, Johnson and Jadlocki.

Manager Vito Della is still after his first win of the season for his Celtics who have been playing tough luck ball since the league opened up. Tonight Della feels that the tide will change and his quintet will come out victorious over the first half runner-up.

Della has a new player in "Slim" Hughes of the Morrisville Simpson and he along with Swadis, Lake, Kelly and Fletcher, will form a strong combination.

The Hibeos will feel the loss of Joe Roe but Manager Gene Dugan still has a formidable combination in Dugan, Snyder, McGinley, Hufnell and Joe Gallagher.

First game will get under way at eight o'clock.
